How the Prepaid Wireless Plans Work:

1. day 1 of your expiry period is the day your SIM is activated;
2. the plan you are on will be suspended when the included time or the expiry date is reached, whichever happens first; any included time not used by the expiry date is forfeited;
3. a plan may be topped up at any time before expiry, or within 5 days after expiry;
4. a top-up purchased before the expiry date kicks in when the current included time is exhausted or the expiry date reached, whichever happens earlier; in the first case, the new expiry period starts from the top-up;
5. if you purchase a top-up within the 5 days after the expiry period, the new expiry period starts from the top-up.
6. you may top up with a different prepaid plan or with a monthly plan; if you change to a monthly plan, you are then subject to how the monthly plans operate;
7. At 5 days after expiry without a top-up, the plan dies - to continue you will need to buy a new SIM ($10 + postage);

6 GB Hard Limit: with prepaid plans you may use up to 6 GB data in a 30 day plan period, but once the 6 GB data limit is reached, the plan is suspended until the end of that 30 day plan period, regardless of any other consideration above.
